DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

1 Jennifer M. Green, a U.S. citizen and New York resident, is co-administrator of the estates of Ken Saro-Wiwa, Saturday Doobee, Felix Nuate, Daniel Gbokoo and James N-nah because the above-named administrators are non-resident aliens.

INTRODUCTION

1. On November 10, 1995, internationally renowned author and human rights and environmental activist Ken Saro-Wiwa, youth leader John Kpuinen, Saturday Doobee, Felix Nuate, Daniel Gbokoo, and Dr. Barinem Kiobel were hanged in Port Harcourt, Nigeria. Ken Saro-Wiwa was the leader of the Movement for the Survival of Ogoni People ("MOSOP") and John Kpuinen was the Deputy President of MOSOP's youth wing, the National Youth Council of Ogoni People ("NYCOP"). Michael Tema Vazor at the time was Vice President of NYCOP. Saro-Wiwa, Kpuinen, Vazor, Doobee, Nuate, Gbokoo, and Dr. Kiobel were among a group falsely accused of murder and tried before a special tribunal in proceedings which violated international standards of due process.

2. The executions of Ken Saro-Wiwa, John Kpuinen, Saturday Doobee, Felix Nuate, Daniel Gbokoo, and Dr. Barinem Kiobel and the imprisonment and torture of Michael Tema Vazor by the Nigerian military junta and the campaign to falsely accuse them were carried out with the knowledge, consent, and/or support of Defendants Royal Dutch Petroleum Company and Shell Transport and Trading Company, p.l.c., ("Defendants" or "Royal Dutch/Shell") and their agents and officers, as part of a pattern of collaboration and/or conspiracy between Defendants and the military junta of Nigeria to violently and ruthlessly suppress any opposition to Royal Dutch/Shell's conduct in its exploitation of oil and natural gas resources in Ogoni and in the Niger Delta.

² Defendants have asserted that, "[o]n July 20, 2005, defendants Royal Dutch [Petroleum Company] and Shell Transport [and Trading Company, p.l.c.] were acquired by Royal Dutch Shell, p.l.c. ("Royal Dutch Shell"). On December 21, 2005, Royal Dutch merged with its subsidiary Shell Petroleum N.V., with Shell Petroleum N.V. as the survivor. Subsequent to its acquisition by Royal Dutch Shell, Shell Transport changed its legal form and is now known as the Shell Transport and Trading Company, Ltd." Answer to Amended Class Action Complaint filed on October 16, 2006 in Kiobel v. Royal Dutch Petroleum Company, et al., 02 Civ. 7618 (KMW) (HBP), fn 1 (attaching as Exhibit A an excerpt from Royal Dutch Shell's Annual Report on Form 20-F for the year ending December 31, 2005, describing this transaction, also available at <http://www.annualreportandform20fshell.com>.)

3. The circumstances under which Plaintiff Karalolo Kogbara was shot further illustrate Royal Dutch/Shell's effort to suppress any and all opposition to its activities in Ogoni. In April 1993, Karalolo Kogbara was shot for her participation in a peaceful demonstration against the efforts of Royal Dutch/Shell to bulldoze her farmland to construct a pipeline for their commercial venture. Plaintiff Michael Tema Vizer was arrested, detained for four days without charge and threatened with beating for participating in the same peaceful demonstration against Royal Dutch/Shell and the Nigerian military regime for bulldozing farmland in Bira Gokana for a Willbros pipeline. Uebari N-nah was shot and killed in October 1993 near a Shell flow station at Korokoro, Rivers State, Nigeria.

4. Defendants Royal Dutch/Shell, together with the military regime governing Nigeria, acting through the Shell Petroleum Development Company of Nigeria Limited ("SPDC"), and acting with other agents and co-conspirators have, in the past and continuing through the present, used force and intimidation to silence any opposition to their activities in Nigeria which include the exploitation of the petroleum resources of the Delta and spoliation of the environment there. Defendants' conduct violates state and federal law, and international law, including the prohibitions against torture, summary execution, crimes against humanity, and the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO).

STATEMENT OF FACTS

General Facts

31. Ogoni is a densely populated rural area of approximately 404 square miles in southern Nigeria.

32. Royal Dutch/Shell began oil production in the Ogoni region in or about 1958.

33. Royal Dutch/Shell appropriated land used for oil exploitation through misrepresentation and coercion and without adequate compensation to the owners.

34. Upon information and belief, approximately 76 percent of the natural gas produced during the exploration and exploitation of the crude oil in Ogoni has been permitted to flare, thereby causing persistent air and noise pollution and reduced agricultural yields in the surrounding area.

35. The oil-related pollution caused by Royal Dutch/Shell's activities has contaminated the local water supply and agricultural land and killed fish; the local economies are based largely on subsistence farming and fishing.

36. Nigeria produces approximately 1.7 to 1.8 million barrels per day of oil. Approximately 90% of this yield is produced in the area of the Niger Delta, which contains the Ogoni region.

37. Approximately 40% of Nigeria's oil production is exported to the United States.

38. Royal Dutch/Shell conducts, and has conducted, its operations in Ogoni and the Niger Delta negligently and with reckless disregard for its effect on the population, wildlife and land of Ogoni. For example:

a. The manner of Royal Dutch/Shell's operation leads and has led repeatedly to oil spillage and gas flares.

b. In June of 1993, Royal Dutch/Shell permitted oil from its Bomu-Tai pipeline to spill into the neighboring villages and countryside for 40 days.

c. Royal Dutch/Shell dug and used unlined waste pits in the middle of Ogoni villages.

39. At all times relevant hereto, the Nigerian military regime was acting in conspiracy with, at the request of and/or on behalf of Defendants. In the alternative, the regime was acting at all times relevant hereto as an agent for Defendants. Upon information and belief, the acts of conspiracy include, but are not limited to, the following:

a. Royal Dutch/Shell's payments, directly or indirectly, to the military, police (including supernumerary police), intelligence, and/or other personnel assigned to Royal Dutch/Shell installations in Nigeria;

b. Royal Dutch/Shell's contracting for the purchase of weapons, directly or indirectly, from or for the Nigerian police (including supernumerary police), military, intelligence, and/or other security agencies or forces or individuals;

c. The surveillance, monitoring and exchange of intelligence between Royal Dutch/Shell and the Nigerian military, police (including supernumerary police), intelligence, and/or other security agencies or forces or individuals;

d. Royal Dutch/Shell's logistical support, directly or indirectly, to the Nigerian police (including supernumerary police), military, intelligence, and/or other security agencies or forces by the provision of transportation vehicles, patrol boats, ammunition and other materiel;

e. Royal Dutch/Shell's participation in the planning and coordination of "security operations" including raids and terror campaigns conducted in Ogoni and the Niger Delta, through regular meetings between Royal Dutch/Shell, their agents, alter-egos, co-conspirators, and officials of the local security forces;

f. The hiring by Royal Dutch/Shell of security personnel from the ranks of the Nigerian police to implement the operations referred to in subparagraph (e) above;

g. The campaign to arrest and execute Ken Saro-Wiwa and John Kpuinen on fabricated murder charges, including Royal Dutch/Shell's bribery or attempted bribery of two witnesses to give false testimony against Saro-Wiwa;

h. A coordinated media and public relations campaign by Royal Dutch/Shell and the Nigerian government to discredit MOSOP leaders, attributing to MOSOP and Saro-Wiwa airplane hijacking, kidnapping, and other acts of violence.

40. In late October, 1990, villagers in Umuechem, a neighboring community to Ogoni, held a demonstration against Royal Dutch/Shell's operation.

41. On or about October 29, 1990, on information and belief, SPDC, acting at all times as the agent of Royal Dutch/Shell, claimed that there would be an attack on October 30, 1990 on its camp site and requested that the Rivers State Commissioner of Police provide the Mobile Police Force for security protection.

42. SPDC specifically requested the assistance of the Mobile Police Force, although this force, popularly known in Nigeria as "kill and go," was widely reputed to commit massacres and other grave human rights violations.

43. On or about October 31, 1990 and November 1, 1990, the mobile police carried out massive scorched earth operations resulting in a massacre of 80 villagers. Over 495 houses were damaged or destroyed.

44. Upon information and belief, following the attack at Umuechem, Royal Dutch/Shell's general manager in Nigeria requested the continued police involvement for their ongoing operation.

45. By 1993, at least 300,000 Ogonis, more than half the population of Ogoni, supported the Movement for Survival of Ogoni People (MOSOP), a human rights organization aimed at protecting the rights of the Ogoni people, including protesting the effects of the oil exploitation on the Ogoni.

46. Upon information and belief, on or about April 28, 1993, SPDC, acting on behalf of Royal Dutch/Shell, together with Willbros West Africa, Inc. ("Willbros"), a pipeline contractor, and in the company of security troops, entered the Ogoni village of Biara to bulldoze farmland in preparation for the Rumuekpe-Bomu pipeline.

47. In reaction to the actions of SPDC and Willbros, villagers gathered to protest the bulldozing. Upon information and belief, SPDC personnel called in government troops who fired on villagers peacefully protesting the destruction of their farms. SPDC employees were present during these operations.

48. On or about April 30, 1993, Karalolo Kogbara was shot by the government troops while protesting the destruction of her property.

49. On or about April 30, 1993, Plaintiff Michael Tema Vizer was arrested,

50. In January 1994, Dr. Barinem Kiobel was appointed as Honorable Commissioner of the Ministry of Commerce and Tourism and Member of the Rivers State Executive Commission. He was an outspoken opponent of Shell's operations in Ogoni and the violent acts against political opponents.

51. In early May, 1993, the Nigerian military took further actions against villagers at the behest of Defendants.

52. On May 4, 1993, in a letter to the Governor of Rivers State, the general manager of SPDC's eastern division requested that the Nigerian government provide "assistance as usual" so that work on the pipeline could continue.

53. Ken Saro-Wiwa was an outspoken critic of Royal Dutch/Shell's operation in the Ogoni region, charging that Royal Dutch/Shell was "waging an ecological war against the Ogoni."

54. In April and June, 1993, Ken Saro-Wiwa and other MOSOP activists were arrested and detained.

55. On or about June 21, 1993, during Saro-Wiwa's detention, Royal Dutch/Shell issued a press statement accusing Saro-Wiwa of organizing a secessionist movement and attacked his environmental protests as being a pretext used to build his political movement.

56. On or about July 6, 1993, while still in detention, Ken Saro-Wiwa was elected president of MOSOP.

57. John Kpuinen held various positions, including that of Deputy President of the National Youth Council of Ogoni People (NYCOP), MOSOP's youth wing. In that capacity, Kpuinen was active in NYCOP's environmental campaign against Royal Dutch/Shell and the Nigerian military regime.

59. Saro-Wiwa, Kpuinen, and Vizer supported and organized peaceful demonstrations in Ogoni.

60. On or about August 5, 1993, the Nigerian military led an attack which resulted in the deaths of at least thirty-five residents of the Ogoni village of Kaa.

61. Upon information and belief, from on or about September 1 through 15, 1993, Nigerian military troops, using Royal Dutch/Shell boats, attacked Ogoni villages on the Andoni border.

62. Upon information and belief, on the days of the attacks, a helicopter chartered by Royal Dutch/Shell reconnoitered the villages of Eeken, Gwara and Kenwibgara along the Andoni border. The military operations resulted in the massacre of over 1000 Ogonis and massive property devastation which left approximately 20,000 people homeless.

63. In September 1993, Ogoni villagers complained about the ongoing environmental contamination due to leaking from the Royal Dutch/Shell pipeline to Royal Dutch/Shell officials in Port Harcourt and local officials in Bomu-Tai.

64. Upon information and belief, on or about October 24, 1993, Royal Dutch/Shell, acting through SPDC, called the military police into the area near the Korokoro flow line; the military police arrived in vehicles supplied by Royal Dutch/Shell; and Royal Dutch/Shell staff were present. The military police shot a seventy-four-year-old man and two youths, killing one, Uebari N-nah.

65. Royal Dutch/Shell paid "field allowances" to the police involved in the Korokoro attacks.

66. Upon information and belief, on or about December 1, 1993, SPDC Managing Director P.B. Watts requested approval by the Nigerian Police Inspector General for an increase in its security; promised to provide complete logistics, accoutrement and welfare support to the Nigerian police force; promised to fully support the cost of setting up and maintaining a police contingent of 550 men; and requested a quotation for the supply of semi-automatic rifles for vehicle and marine patrols.

67. Royal Dutch/Shell, acting through SPDC, publicly praised the co-operation and excellent working relationship developed over the years between the Nigerian Police Force and SPDC.

68. Plaintiff Owens Wiwa was detained without charges, from on or about December 26, 1993 to the night of January 4, 1994 to prevent him from organizing for and participating in a planned demonstration to protest, among other things, Royal Dutch Shell's despoilation of the Ogoni environment.

69. Plaintiff Owens Wiwa was arrested by Captain Odina who worked directly under Major Okuntimo. Plaintiff Owens Wiwa was manhandled during his arrest and mistreated during his detention.

70. In April 1994, Nigerian security forces supported attacks on eight Ogoni villages and burned down the villages of Ledor on April 16 and Tumbe on April 18, 1994.

71. Plaintiff Owens Wiwa was detained from on or about April 6, 1994 to April 20, 1994 on false charges of murder. During his detention, plaintiff was assaulted by Lt. Kennedy in the presence of Major Okuntimo.

72. Plaintiff Owens Wiwa and his fellow arrestee, Noble Obani-Nwibari, were told to face the woods and guns were put to their heads. They were saved by the intervention of a policeman whose daughter plaintiff had treated.

73. On each of the occasions described above, Plaintiff Owens Wiwa was arrested at the direction of Major Okuntimo.

74. At the time of the arrests of Owens Wiwa, Major Okuntimo was receiving an allowance from Royal Dutch/Shell.

75. On or about April 21, 1994, Lieutenant Colonel Komo, the Head of Rivers State sent a memo to the head of the Internal Security Task Force detailing an extensive military presence and policy of military intervention in Ogoni, in order to ensure that those "carrying out business ventures...within Ogoniland are not molested." On or about May 12, 1994, the Rivers State Internal Security Task Force, a military unit headed by Major Paul Okuntimo, reported that "Shell operations still impossible unless ruthless military operations are undertaken for smooth economic activities to commence", and proposed that the Nigerian Police exert pressure on Shell for regular payments from Royal Dutch/Shell to support the operations.

76. On May 21, 1994, four Ogoni tribal leaders were killed.

77. Between May and August 1994, the Rivers State Internal Security Task Force mounted several months of nightly raids through at least sixty towns and villages in Ogoni, to punish entire communities for their support for MOSOP.

78. Between May 1994 and August 1994, several hundred young Ogoni men were arrested, detained and flogged on a daily basis because of their real or imagined affiliation with MOSOP.

79. On or about May 22, 1994, Ken Saro-Wiwa and Dr. Barinem Kiobel were arrested and detained without charges by the Nigerian military and the arrest of the entire MOSOP leadership was ordered by the Rivers State military administrator.

80. No charges were filed against them for eight months after their arrest and detention.

81. Michael Tema Vizer was asked to confess to the murder of the four Ogoni tribal leaders on May 21, 1994. When he refused he was beaten and tortured. While in jail he was denied medical assistance. On one occasion his son, Wisdom Vizer brought some medication to give to him, but was caught by the soldiers and beaten and detained for two days without food. On his release he was warned to cease all visits to Plaintiff Vizer.

82. During his arrest Plaintiff Vizer was manhandled and beaten in front of his children. Soldiers then stole N400,00 in cash and documents from his home.

83. In October 1994, plaintiff Owens Wiwa was arrested and held for 12 hours for the possession of letters written by Ken Saro-Wiwa.

84. In November, 1994, a three-man tribunal ("Civil Disturbances Special Tribunal") was created and specially appointed by the Nigerian military regime to try Ken Saro-Wiwa, John Kpuinen, Dr. Barinem Kiobel, and other Ogoni leaders for the May 21, 1994 murder of four Ogoni tribal leaders. They were formally charged on January 28, 1995.

85. On or about March 16, 1995, on information and belief, top Shell executives of Shell International Petroleum Company, Ltd. ("SIPC") met in Shell Centre, London with the Nigerian High Commissioner, and top Nigerian military officers to discuss common strategy regarding Ken Saro-Wiwa and the Ogoni campaign, including a joint media campaign and other action.

86. On March 28, 1995, the Civil Disturbances Special Tribunal assumed jurisdiction over the cases of ten additional Ogoni leaders, including Saturday Doobee, Felix Nuate, Daniel Gbokoo, and Michael Tema Vizor, who were formally charged with murder on April 7, 1995.

87. Ken Saro-Wiwa, John Kpuinen, Michael Tema Vizor, Saturday Doobee, Felix Nuate, Daniel Gbokoo, Dr. Barinem Kiobel and others were arrested because of their non-violent opposition to the activities of Royal Dutch/Shell and the Nigerian military.

88. The creation of the Civil Disturbances Special Tribunal and the conduct of the ensuing trial violated customary international law because, inter alia:

a. An edict creating the Civil Disturbances Special Tribunal and providing the death penalty was given retroactive effect;

b. the Civil Disturbances Special Tribunal's judgment was not subject to review by a higher court;

c. the accused met with their counsel only with the permission of and in the presence of a military officer.

89. Defense counsel for the accused were subjected to threats of beatings and Ken Saro-Wiwa's 74-year-old mother, as well as other family members, were beaten when attending the Civil Disturbances Special Tribunal hearing.

90. The accused were denied adequate food and medical care, beaten and subjected to other torture.

91. Royal Dutch/Shell promised bribes to at least two key witnesses to give false testimony against Saro-Wiwa.

92. On January 4, 1995, soldiers dispersed peaceful demonstrations protesting Royal Dutch/Shell's operation and the arrest of Saro-Wiwa, Kpuinen and the others with shootings, beatings and arrests, extorting money from those who they released.

93. Those incarcerated as a result of the January 4, 1995 protest were subjected to floggings and other torture.

94. In June 1995, the team of defense lawyers representing Saro-Wiwa , and Kpuinen withdrew from the proceedings as a protest against the flagrant violations of international standards of due process in the two concurrent trials.

95. In August 1995, plaintiff Owens Wiwa was arrested and held for 5-6 hours for possession of foreign telephone numbers of human rights groups around the world.

96. Upon information and belief, Royal Dutch/Shell held meetings with the Nigerian military regime to discuss strategies concerning the unlawful execution of Saro-Wiwa.

97. Brian Anderson, the Managing Director of SPDC, and on information and belief, an employee and agent of Royal Dutch/Shell, met with Plaintiff Owens Wiwa and offered to trade Ken Saro-Wiwa's freedom for an end to the international protests against Defendants.

98. On or about October 30 and 31, 1995, Ken Saro-Wiwa, John Kpuinen, Saturday Doobee, Felix Nuate, Daniel Gbokoo, Dr. Barinem Kiobel and other Ogoni activists were condemned to death by the military-appointed special tribunal, in violation of international law and the laws of Nigeria.

99. Michael Tema Vizer was given partial and purported acquittal.

100. Ken Saro-Wiwa, John Kpuinen, Saturday Doobee, Felix Nuate, Daniel Gbokoo, Dr. Barinem Kiobel and the others scheduled for execution were beaten, denied food, water or bedding for a period of days prior to their execution.

101. On November 10, 1995, Plaintiffs Ken Saro-Wiwa, John Kpuinen, Saturday Doobee, Felix Nuate, Daniel Gbokoo, Dr. Barinem Kiobel were hanged.

102. On November 13, 1995, Plaintiff Owens Wiwa, who had previously been arrested and detained by the Nigerian government on four occasions without charges, fled Nigeria because he feared arbitrary arrest, torture and death.

103. On January 5, 1996, soldiers came to the home of Plaintiff Michael Tema Vizer in Mogho Gokana in Ogoni with the purpose of killing him. Finding the house empty, they broke into the house. They searched for money and property to loot, and then destroyed the house.

104. Because of this incident Plaintiff Vizer along with five of his children was forced to flee and fall out of touch with his family in Port Harcourt. He did not see them again for seven years.

105. Plaintiff Michael Tema Vizer and his children were forced to leave Nigeria and his family, and escape first to Benin and then Canada.

106. Plaintiff Owens Wiwa was forced to leave his medical clinic and his work as a doctor.

107. On December 15, 1995, Royal Dutch/Shell signed an agreement to invest $4 billion in a natural gas project in Nigeria.

108. Over the next two years, an additional twenty Ogonis were also detained and charged with murder in connection with the same allegations and before the same Civil Disturbances Special Tribunal that convicted Saro-Wiwa, Kpuinen, Saturday Doobee, Felix Nuate, Daniel Gbokoo, and Dr. Barinem Kiobel. All, aside from those who died in detention, were subsequently released by 1998.

109. Of the total twenty Ogoni detained, eighteen, most held without trial since mid-1994, were charged in May 1995 on a "holding charge" of murder. Of those eighteen charged, one died in detention and two were released.

110. Four others were charged with murder in the magistrate's court on October 27, 1995.

111. Upon information and belief, Royal Dutch/Shell private police cooperated in the arrests, beatings and torture of some of the twenty arrested.

112. The twenty Ogonis were detained for various periods without trial under conditions violative of minimum international standards.

113. Oil revenues provide 80% of Nigeria's federal government budget.

114. Oil from Nigeria accounts for approximately 14% of Royal Dutch/Shell's global oil production.

115. At all times relevant herein, Defendants Royal Dutch/Shell knew or should have known that the Nigerian regime, its army and police committed human rights abuses, including summary executions, in connection with the exploitation of oil in Ogoni and the Niger Delta.
